Transformation (M.Sc.)

Most welcome to the Faculty of Forest and Environment!

Due to the worldwide pandemic, probably not all students can be physically in Eberswalde. Therefore, our winter term will be a mixture of live-streamed seminars in Eberswalde and also pure online seminars. Those students, who will only participate online, should ensure that they can attend at the same time as the seminars are conducted to allow lively interaction between the students and lecturers.

The voluntary and recommended opening session and introductory week for our first semester master students (from Forest Information Technology, Global Change Management and Forestry System Transformation) will start on Monday, 21st of September 2020 at 10:00 am. You are welcome to participate on the forest campus (Wilhelm-Pfeil-Auditorium / lecture halls 15.001 & 15.006) or online. The official start of the semester and lecture period is on October 5. If you plan to be in Eberswalde for the opening session, please let us know at the latest by September 15 for our further planning (to: christoph.nowicki@hnee.de; ALWAYS briefly stating the name of your respective study programme), as the COVID-19 hygiene regulations (see following pages) restrict the maximum number of people in a lecture hall / seminar room.

Further and up-to-date information on the detailed programme of the introductory week of each master programme can soon be found on the homepage of the respective study programme (www.hnee.de/fit / www.hnee.de/gcm / www.hnee.de/fst).

We hope that we will all meet personally as soon as possible.

We are looking forward to meeting you – stay healthy!
