Workshops on Unbalanced tourism growth at destination level

The European Innovation Council and SMEs Executive Agency (EISMEA) and European Commission, Directorate-General for Internal Market, Industry, Entrepreneurship and SMEs (DG GROW), commissioned a study investigating unbalanced tourism growth at EU destinations. This study, titled “Unbalanced tourism growth at destination level – root causes, impacts, existing solutions and good practices”, spans from December 2020 until June 2022.

The objective of the study is to build solid evidence on the phenomenon of overtourism, in particular by focusing on the multiple root causes and effects of overtourism at the destination level, as well as on gathering concrete best practice solutions (preventive and mitigating actions), that have been successfully applied by tourism destinations in the EU, and globally. The study further proposes a set of overtourism indicators, that can serve tourism destinations in establishing their risk analysis frameworks, allowing them to detect the potential risk of overtourism and address the associated challenges in a timely manner. Finally, the study aims to contribute to the dialogue among EU tourism stakeholders, on the topic of sustainable tourism, by organising a series of workshops in order to discuss common challenges and problems, exchange best practice solutions, and assess and validate the developed indicators.

We would like to invite you to participate in one, or any, of these workshops.

Five one-day workshops will be organised in five types of destinations, i.e. island destinations, urban destinations, mountain destinations, coastal destinations, rural destinations:
